

CALL FOR SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS FOR: Stepping Stones Teacher Development Program (for staff and physicians at North York General Hospital)

North York General Hospital will be awarding a limited number of scholarships to pay tuition for the 2016-2018 Stepping Stones Teacher Development Program at the Centre for Faculty Development at the University of Toronto.

What is Stepping Stones Teacher Development Program?

This accredited program is designed to assist teachers with their educational and teaching roles. After completion of the program, the Stepping Stones Teacher Development Certificate will be awarded.

Who should register?

The program is primarily targeted to clinical faculty although basic science and clinical investigator teachers will find many of the topics relevant. The program is open to all health professions teachers and educators.

What's required to complete the program?

There are 3 components to the program:

1. Participate in at least 26 hours of workshops at the Centre for Faculty Development. Each workshop is a half-day (3-4 hours). Participants have 2 years to complete this requirement. (Accredited faculty development workshops at NYGH and up to 6 hours of the video-cast BPER rounds can be used towards this requirement.)
2. Accumulate an additional 14 hours of training by participating in a journal club. These take place once a month (2 hours) during the academic year. Candidates will be expected to review specific articles related to various aspects of teaching and learning theory from a wide array of health professional education literature pertinent to all levels of the teaching experience. Participants must complete the 14 hours (7 journal club sessions) within one academic year.
3. As part of the journal club, candidates will be required to complete two graded assignments: an annotated bibliography and a reflection paper.

Program Fees

$650 for members of University of Toronto Faculty of Medicine
$850 for all other staff at North York General Hospital
